

In 1868, the Union Pacific built across the Great Divide Basin, a 90 by 40 mile wide basin on the Great Divide. The dry, flat land in the basin is at an elevation of about 7,000 feet.

The double track UP mainline crosses the Great Divide Basin near Creston Junction, Wyoming.

Another view of the UP mainline near Creston Junction. Note the snow drift fences.